Silver Springs In Retrospect - 2001

A Foretaste of the Mansion Worlds: Retreat Network Retreat By Sheryl Cira

How can I describe the experience of spending four days with wonderful people in a beautiful place, sharing and renewing our spiritual commitments, worshipping God, enjoying nature, and even eating incredible food? Love, forgiveness, acceptance, peace, God's presence, joy, and renewed commitment: these were just a few of the wonderful things I experienced at the Retreat Network Retreat.

The retreat was held at Silver Springs, Derek and Sue Tennant's culinary retreat center. Silver Springs is nestled in the rolling farms and woods of Ontario, just south of Georgian Bay of Lake Huron and two hours north of Toronto. The remodeled country farmhouse and barn are impeccably done and nestled alongside a stream and ponds with a small waterfall in between. Derek and Sue have done everything they can to make it a place of beauty and serenity. A flag bearing the three circles flies from the flagpole in front of the house.

We arrived on Thursday August 23, and spent time reconnecting with old friends and making new ones. We quickly became a group, comfortable with one another, as though we'd all known one another for years. I felt a spirit of friendliness and acceptance that I have not experienced for years—the experience of being among spiritually mature and loving people, whose goal is service. That evening we had the first of many delicious gourmet meals, prepared by Sue and her assistants, chief of whom is Virgie, a wonderful woman from the Philippines who embodies the spirit of service.

There were 21 of us, from 7 states and Mexico. The program started officially Friday morning, with an opening ceremony conducted by Condor, David and Theresa Doolittle.

David is a classical guitarist par excellence, and Theresa accompanies him and tells tales of the native American peoples. We enjoyed their music many times throughout the retreat. Gard Jameson conducted the first session on centering prayer. It was both intellectually and spiritually stimulating. It was followed by meditation, the first of many sessions we enjoyed. After a delicious lunch outside in the gazebo, Bill and Sharron Beasley led a group called "Reflect and Serve." They inspired us all to look for more ways to be of service. Kurt Cira led a group sharing session which he initiated by sharing his story of the first time he felt God's love in his life. Many in the group shared personal stories, which helped all of us to become closer. After free time and another wonderful meal, we enjoyed more of David and Theresa's music in the beautiful living room, most of us reluctant to go to bed and put an end to the perfect day.

Saturday began, as did every morning, with yoga, conducted by April Morgan. Everyone who attended said it was wonderful. In our opening session Carol Weatherford related her inspiring spiritual history. Marvin Gawryn expanded on Centering Prayer, providing an excellent follow-up to Gard's presentation. Following lunch, Tom Choquette inspired us with incidents from his life which exhorted us all to be of service. Later we took a hike through the woods with Sue as our guide, and were rewarded with a breathtaking view from a rock escarpment, followed by an amazing climb down a cleft in the cliff. Cool caves felt air conditioned on a clear and warm summer afternoon. The superb dinner was even more appreciated thanks to our stimulated appetites. That evening Sherilyn Henry informed us of a new project called Spiritual Fellowship, and the group had an opportunity to ask questions and offer their input.

After Sunday breakfast Dolores Nice led an inspiring worship service and remembrance supper.

We concluded with the business meeting of the Retreat Network.

The retreat was wonderful in every way, including the sunny, Jerusem-like weather. It was with great sadness that we said good-bye to each other. I was leaving the company of newly found brothers and sisters, but felt encouraged by the friendships and commitments I had made. For me it was a perfect retreat, with memories I will carry to the mansion worlds. □

Fruits Of The Retreat

By Jean-Pierre Heudier

(Jean-Pierre and his wife Nickla attended a retreat entitled "The Religion of Jesus: How to Live It" lead by Bill and Kaye Cooper last August at Silver Springs. One of the sessions of the retreat is based on a prayer booklet written by Kaye called "Prayer of the Branches to the Vine." This powerful prayer asks for more opportunities to serve, more awareness of our opportunities and guidance in serving. Participants were invited to consider praying this prayer sincerely, repeatedly and in faith. Here are Jean-Pierre's comments about his experience since returning home.)

The retreat is certainly producing some fruits in my life. Let me first mention that when Kaye presented and read the "Prayer of the Branches to the Vine", something happened within me: there was, almost simultaneously, an urge of wanting to respond with a vibrant affirmative yes and a fear that its acceptance may lead me to much more than I could handle. Nevertheless, I overcame the fear and started to use the prayer.

Before the retreat, a few people would come and see me for help on a regular basis for Reiki treatments. Reiki is a healing practice that came to the US from Japan.

Since then:

1. New faces have appeared.
2. The familiar visitors have come with issues deeper and more spiritual in character than before.
3. The past few days I have had sometimes two persons a day or more (versus two or three a week), and two-thirds of them have experienced a turning point in their lives during the session.

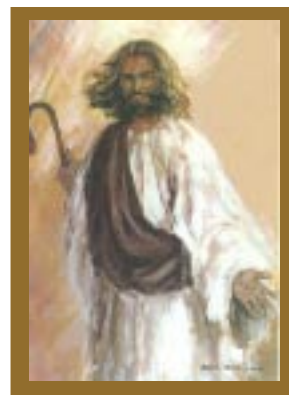

I am very much aware that this is happening in response to the prayer of the branches to the vine, and I most certainly find great joy in this service, as I witness tremendous changes taking place in the lives of the people who knock at our door.

These fruits of the spirit which I am witnessing are due to several other factors. Among these:

1. My main objective in attending the retreat was to have a more intimate relationship with Jesus/Michael, to be more in tune with the Spirit of Truth. This has been realized.
2. Since the people who come and see me have allegiance to different Christian denominations and non-Christian religions, more and more do I realize the importance of staying with the gospel of Jesus (Sonship/Fatherhood of God, and brotherhood of men) rather than the gospel about Jesus.

3. Some of the principles which I have used before (such as the importance of knowing, believing and acting on the truth of being a son or daughter of God) as well as some beautiful techniques (seeing ourselves, others, circumstances, through God's eyes) have taken a new life since I came back.
4. In the past few days, several clients with deep issues were able to resolve them by exercising their faith in their spiritual sonship and God's love for them, simply accepting God's forgiveness. I have seen many tears of joy and relief! □

Why Do They Do It That Way?

Judging and Perceiving

By Kaye Cooper

Have you ever looked at someone practicing their religion (or leading a worship at a Urantia Book conference) and wondered, “Why do they do it that way?” You might assume that it has to do with the religion in which they were raised or tradition. You might assume they don’t know any better (i.e. they don’t read the Urantia Book). But there are some interesting explanations for the differences in the way people approach God that make a lot of sense. This is the second in a series of four articles which describe the way our temperaments affect the way we relate to God and to things spiritual. I use the word “temperament” and not “personality” because temperaments are a result of both the characteristics we are born with and the choices we make in response to our environment.

The contrast between judging and perceiving types of temperaments are probably the least understood by most people. A misunderstanding arises immediately when a person first learns of the two labels: “Aha! Judging means judgmental, right?” Wrong.

Judging has to do with the ability of some people to make assessments easily. Quick judgments are in contrast to the inclination of those who fall in the perceiving category. Perceivers like to take in information. They love to look at all sides of a question. Decisions tend to be difficult for perceivers because they prefer to remain open to whatever new data may come in.

People who make decisions easily have a spiritual advantage in that our spiritual lives are very closely tied to moral and ethical decisions. The decision maker plows ahead making choices and learning as a result. The perceiver, on the other hand, has the spiritual advantage of being naturally inclined toward tolerance. Another aspect of the judging-perceiving category of traits has to do with organization. The judging type tends to like structure, order and predictability. She is comforted by familiar routines. The perceiver prefers variety, flexibility and surprises. She finds predictability to be boring.

I recently was visiting with someone who had just been introduced to centering prayer. She was genuinely looking forward to the discipline of setting aside time twice a day to practice centering prayer. “I like structure,” she said. “It is helpful to me to get into a regular habit of time with God.” It makes perfect sense to establish regular habits in prayer and worship. And yet what is very beneficial to the judging type is stifling to the perceiving type. The person who gets bored with routine often thinks that he should establish regular habits, but will end up feeling guilty when he finds the same activity twice a day boring after a while. The perceiving type will often give up the attempt to establish regular habits.

Of course, many people fall close to the middle of the spectrum on judging and perceiving and recognize that they have some characteristics of each type. But when the contrast between two people is strong, this difference in approach to religion can cause friction between religionists. Each one has a hard time recognizing the validity of the other. Judging types interpret the perceiver’s love of variety and flexibility as being immature and irresponsible. The perceiver resents being described in that manner and accuses the judging type of being judgmental. Perceivers, on the other hand tend to see the judging type’s desire for predictability and stability as rigid and boring.

It is important to accept and tolerate, even appreciate these different approaches to God. God doesn’t set many limitations on our spirituality. Our God is adventuresome. God loves to experiment and encourages us to experiment spiritually. The fact that we are so varied in our temperaments suggests to me that God’s plan includes all sorts of approaches to our spiritual lives. God is also practical. I feel confident that God expects us to use what works for us.

Recognizing and accepting our differences can make each of us feel comfortable with our needs for structure (or flexibility, as the case may be) without feeling called to convert the other.

Keep in mind the benefits of occasional exploration with new approaches. While stepping outside our comfort zone usually takes more energy and intentionality, it can bring us new insights and expand our horizons.

For more information on temperaments (both are based on the Myers-Briggs analysis of temperament):

- ◆ Chester P. Michael and Marie C. Norrissey. Prayer and Temperament, The Open Door, Inc., Charlottesville, VA, 1984.

Characteristics of Judging and Perceiving

Judging Tendencies:

- ◆ live a planned, orderly life; prefer structure; dislike improvising.
- ◆ like things settled, finished as soon as possible, brought to closure.
- ◆ enjoy following a schedule and meeting a deadline.
- ◆ like to know ahead of time to permit planning.

Why Do They Do It That Way? - continued

- ◆ usually have a definite system for doing everything and are consistent in following it.
- ◆ are active, decisive, able to get things done.
- ◆ try to control the world in which they live.
- ◆ try to put everyone on schedule, usually their schedule.
- ◆ have a settled opinion and position on most things.

Perceiving Tendencies:

- ◆ are flexible, open-minded; continually try to discover more data.
- ◆ are reluctant to make final decisions.
- ◆ may postpone unpleasant jobs.
- ◆ dislike deadlines and feel cramped by a tight schedule.
- ◆ live life in a spontaneous, free-spirited manner.
- ◆ enjoy the unexpected, love surprises.
- ◆ make resolutions but seldom keep them.
- ◆ amass an astonishing store of information on any number of varied subjects.

- ◆ are always receptive to new facts and allow the world to influence them.

Retreat Adjustments for Judging Types:

1. Provide some structured time.
2. Offer optional goals and/or instructions for unstructured time.
3. Keep things simple and uncomplicated.
4. Break things down into steps, and give explicit instructions.

Retreat Adjustments for Perceivers:

1. Provide for some unstructured time.
2. Give permission to deviate from optional goals and/or instructions that may be provided for the unstructured time.
3. Give permission to adjust exercises and visualizations to the individual. □

More On Silver Springs Religion Of Jesus - How to Live It By Mark & Kathy George-Moore

Last August we were among 12 people from all over North America who were given the unique and wonderful opportunity to experience living the religion of Jesus. Bill and Kaye Cooper led us on an adventure that is truly unsurpassed on Urantia.

Bill and Kaye gave us a rich environment to exercise our intellect and to fall in love with our brothers and sisters. We felt the presence of our unseen friends and felt our spirits growing. Each day was full of countless opportunities for discovery of new and dynamic methods to live the life of Jesus. Our relationship with our Creator became more profound with each passing day.

We sincerely hope that many more of our brothers and sisters will have the opportunity to experience this taste of light and life in the coming years. □

In His Presence Book Review By Dolores Nice

The foreword of this little book begins with:

To you who read with the heart, these words shall be as a lighted lantern hung by the roadside on a dark night. They shall make light the way and easy the path for you who journey."

I found this to be true. I have used this book for over 15 years as one of my choices for my daily spiritual reading. And it has nourished my soul and given me many new insights and encouragements. In His Presence, was originally written in 1946 by Eva Bell Werber and has had many printings by the De Vorss Publishing Co. The book contains a series of short passages or lessons with titles like; Quietly Comes My Blessing, Beauty of the Inner Realm, Peace Within, the Time of Stillness and Carry My Light. They read like personal talks from Jesus and the term of endearment, "beloved" is used throughout the book.

In light of the recent horrors of the terrorist attacks, I think the following passage especially poignant and healing.

"I will speak to you through the pages of this book words that shall sing for you down the years, words which shall tell of My great love and abiding presence.

They will tell of My great rebuilding power in the human life, and how I so tenderly care for and direct Mine own.

I will tell you of a world of beauty which is there for all to find, not a war torn world blasted apart by hate and selfishness, but a world of peace and love.

You say, "Where can we now find such a world? Even after the shriek of bomb and shell is hushed, there is still desolation, misery, fear and despair. Shall there ever be a place where men hate and destroy not?"

Listen, My Beloved, and be at peace. You first must find this place you desire within your own heart.

There in the garden of your soul you shall meet Me, your Beloved.

My hand is laid in tenderness on your head. At its mystical touch the outer realm with its destruction, its confusion of purpose falls away.

A great stillness shall pervade you and you shall only be conscious of the sweetness of the Holy Presence." □

A Season in Communion With the Father

“Triune Harmony”

“It is to the mind of perfect poise, housed in a body of clean habits, stabilized neural energies, and balanced chemical function-when the physical, mental, and spiritual powers are in triune harmony of development-that a maximum of light and truth can be imparted with a minimum of temporal danger or risk to the real welfare of such a being. By such balanced growth does man ascend the circles of planetary progression one by one, from the seventh to the first.” (pg.1209)

The Retreat Network would like to announce a unique retreat to be held at Silver Springs Retreat Center that combines the health giving process of fasting with a two-week spiritual retreat. The object is to move toward a healthier vegetarian diet by allowing the body to rest, cleanse and balance through a 10-day therapeutic fast and a 4-day recovery introducing the freshest and healthiest foods. At the same time, energy will be directed towards Centering Prayer, guided meditation, study and discussion of the Urantia Book, silent contemplation and reading, as well as outdoor activities. The unique feature of this retreat will be the mutual support which will take place through a commitment to health for the purpose of enhanced spiritual attunement and energy for service to the human family.

The retreat will take place January 12-26, 2002. For details and registration e-mail Bruce Porter at: bruceport@aol.com.

Thought Adjuster Attunement

By Sue & Derek Tennant

Last Easter, Adventures in Spiritual Living (ASL) offered a new weekend retreat entitled "Thought Adjuster Attunement" at Camp Buchner* in Texas. Both of us had been working hard and were ready for a spiritual adventure. This one broke the mold. The brand-new, innovative material, and exciting thoughtful presentations kept us focused - for three days straight - on our relationship with our Thought Adjuster. What a great way to take a break!

The Urantia Book introduces many new concepts, but the idea of the highest and purest form of spiritual energy actually living in us is utterly profound. We know the Adjuster facilitates worship and empowers our service to others. We know the Adjuster and Spirit of Truth reveal the Father's love and mercy through us. We know that increasingly closer communion with this indwelling spirit is the whole purpose of our lives. Who then, does not sometimes feel daunted by the challenge of attuning to pure spirit and at the same time exhilarated by the possibilities?

Bill and Kaye Cooper and Skip and Carol Weatherford have designed a friendly retreat where everyone feels comfortable and welcome, but where spiritual transformation is the goal. Prayer prior to the retreat and unceasingly during the retreat brings their own partnership with God to the center of everything they do. Their manner was gentle and kind but they kept our attention focused on our operative indwelling fragment of Deity. Their skill was to restate Urantia Book teachings with simplicity and impact and to design unique activities to enhance our experiential understanding. The spirit had great latitude to work in all of us. It seemed to us that no one escaped the healing hand of spirit.

An ASL retreat is really very different from a Urantia Book reader conference where options are offered simultaneously. There is no "smorgasbord" of workshops, where we might try a little of this and a little of that and come and go as we please. Rather, this retreat was like a gourmet meal, with each course lovingly prepared to stimulate but not overwhelm the spiritual palate. Each program segment was unique in flavor, sometimes theoretical, sometimes interactive, sometimes reflective, but always fresh, satisfying and whetting the appetite for more. We savored the topic over several days with the same small group of people and our commitment to be present for the entire meal, to pace ourselves, to experiment with a variety of new spiritual flavors and most importantly to grow in love for one another, was a real spiritual adventure. And like a great meal it was made unforgettable by the sharing of it.

We are indebted to ASL for their progressive facilitation. We give "Thought Adjuster Attunement" a "thumbs-up" rating and urge every serious UB reader to consider attending this retreat in the future. □

*Camp Buckner is a beautiful Christian retreat facility in central Texas. The camp has tasteful and comfortable accommodations with private bath, good food and a new fully equipped meeting room.

NOTE: ASL will be offering an expanded five-day retreat on this topic next July at Silver Springs.

“A Child’s Prayer”

One of Truth, I pray, that the life which comes from me comes from you that the seed sprouts the flower of divinity that the child knows the root of her destiny

I feel so humble to the task of nurturing life
May I not waver in the commission coming before me
I know so little of the Fatherly way
May you be recognized in the example I portray

If she reaches for my hand, may you take mine in yours so that she knows the comfort I feel with you If she cries out, may I be there for her modeling your presence in the midst of tears and fears

I have glimpsed bits of truth and harmony
I have seen shades of higher reality
May she know in clarity the possibilities I have only dreamed

One of Love, I pray, that which is strength in me is shared that those flaws I have are diminished but mostly that the life which comes from me comes from you.
